Overview

PUC-Rio maintains over 300 student exchange agreements and offers several double degree programs.

In addition to mobility opportunities for students, the University sustains a broad network of academic partnerships with institutions around the world. These collaborations foster joint research projects, scientific events, conferences, and seminars, as well as the supervision and co-supervision of Master's and Doctoral theses, participation in examination boards and committees, staff mobility programs, and a variety of other academic initiatives.

Please note that this list is regularly updated, as new agreements are established and existing partnerships may be concluded.

Students seeking further details on exchange opportunities are encouraged to contact the Central Coordination for International Cooperation (CCCI).
